The U.S. Department of Veterans Affairs (VA) is committed to advancing suicide prevention outreach, education, and treatment to prevent suicide among all Veterans. Ensuring all VA and community health care professionals have access to suicide risk management best practices and consultation support is a critical piece of this commitment.

The Suicide Risk Management Consultation Program (SRM) is here to help

We provide free consultation, support, education and resources that promote therapeutic best practices for professionals working with Veterans at risk for suicide. SRM is designed specifically for any healthcare providers working with Veterans... don't hesitate to reach out!

Free, monthly lectures eligible for Continuing Education (CE) credits

2nd WED each month @ 2-3pm ET

Join us on the second Wednesday of each month from 2 – 3 pm ET to learn more about suicide risk management and best practices. Recordings of past presentations are also available for free CE credits.

Confidential provider to provider consultation

SRM consults are designed to protect confidentiality. Our team will never ask for identifying information that would breach protected health information.

Subject matter experts on Veteran suicide prevention

Our team of consultants offer expertise on various suicide risk management issues. Topics include:

-  Strategies to identify and assist Veterans at risk for suicide
-  Best practices for suicide risk management for Veterans with complex care needs and/or family concerns
-  Recommendations for addressing minimal treatment engagement in care
-  Postvention support following a Veteran suicide loss

Notice: SRM offers expert guidance on subjects that come up frequently in the course of caring for Veterans at risk for suicide. In accordance with the Federal Tort Claims Act, we cannot provide direct guidance or consultation regarding the care of a specific Veteran, nor assume clinical responsibility for patients not under our care.
